

Web-Based Document Management Software

Fortis Web is a web-based document management solution that delivers easy access to the Fortis repository from anywhere – whether in the office or thousands of miles away – so that your organization can manage business critical information from the web.

Staff, colleagues, customers or partners can search and retrieve documents, import documents, add index data, edit, annotate, launch and perform many additional functions from Fortis Web's easy-to-use interface.

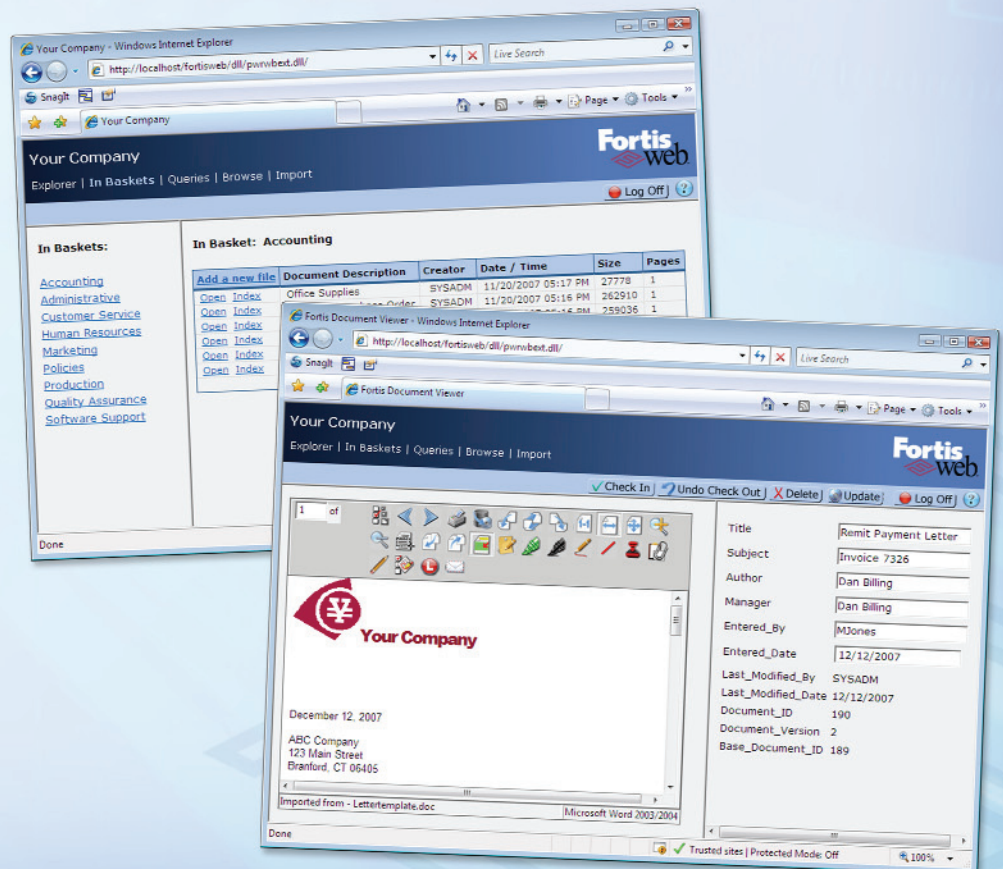

Benefits of Fortis Web

- Securely share information and collaborate from anywhere to enable informed decision making
- Deliver immediate access to the Fortis document repository from a web browser interface
- Find documents and content through targeted searches as opposed to timely and inefficient paper searches
- Reduce paper-handling costs and the costs of document distribution

Secure Document Management—Anytime, Anywhere

Organizations are faced with the challenge of making information easily accessible to facilitate communication and collaboration, while at the same time, safeguarding content for security, confidentiality and compliance.

With Fortis Web, organizations can securely share information and collaborate from anywhere to enable informed decision making and rapid responses to business inquiries. Fortis Web increases document accessibility and delivers a secure method for information sharing. With security controls and auditing functions, your organization can set the levels of access to content and monitor activities and actions performed on documents.

Collaborative Computing with Comprehensive Functionality

Fortis Web users can search, import, edit, annotate and delete documents right inside their browsers. Users can also launch documents into their native applications and easily email documents to co-workers, colleagues and business associates. Collaborative computing has never been so easy. Search, find, view and use. It's that simple. With comprehensive display, processing and retrieval capabilities, users can also modify index data, set preferences, view thumbnails, insert files and objects, search content and zoom in and out, rotate, export and print documents.

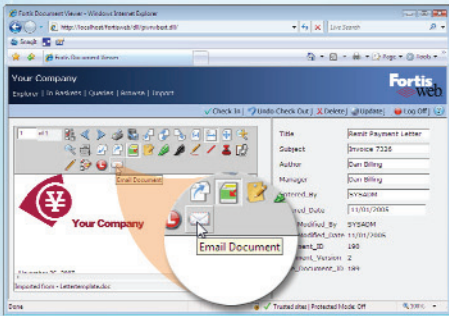

Minimal Training and Efficient Deployment

With an easy-to-use interface, users require minimal training and can get up to speed quickly to perform their essential tasks from nearly any location. Distributed workforces can collaborate easily with Fortis Web. Fortis Web increases productivity and empowers business processes while integrating seamlessly into an organization's existing IT strategy.

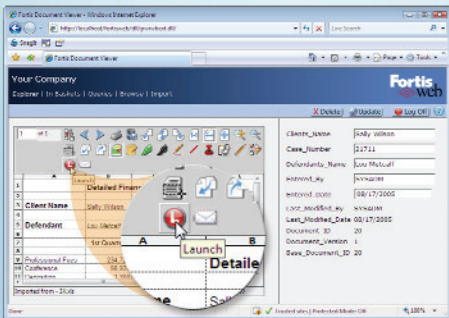

As a thin client solution, Fortis Web helps alleviate IT maintenance as it can be rapidly deployed and requires minimal IT resources. Users access the software through a web browser, thus minimizing software installation and IT support.

Easily Customize Appearance

While Fortis Web has an easy-to-use interface, the flexibility of Fortis Web makes it easy to design and customize its behavior, interaction and appearance to suit an organization's needs. Using standard Web development software tools, an administrator can design Fortis Web to match the look and feel of an organization's web presence.

Easily share and distribute documents to colleagues and clients from the browser interface. Click the Email Document button and specify the format for the file, such as PDF, to send the document to those who need it.

From Fortis Web, you can launch another application, such as Microsoft Word or Excel, to edit documents. Your changes are then automatically saved to Fortis – there's no need to re-import the file.
